Fashion Week Roundup: Day 2

In Designers, Events, Fashion, Trends, Updates on October 9, 2009 at 4:21 pm

Day 2 of Tampa Bay Fashion Week was a mixture of sexy and ultra-feminine. There was something for everyone, from red hot lingerie (literally) to elegant evening gowns. Each collection was filled with illuminating color.

Rhonda Shear tapped into our inner pin-up girl with lingerie in body conscious silhouettes and glitzy accents...

Michael Della Penna wasn't afraid to pair colors with lavender as the staple color for the collection. Ruffles gave each look a feminine appeal in an array of colors...

SEND A NEWS TIP

The 2010 collections of 15 local and regional designers were featured in this years Fashion Week Tampa Bay 2009. The event, held at the Sheraton Tampa Riverwalk, was packed full of fabulous fashion, VIP soirees, after parties, vendor and exhibitor boutiques, and two nights of runway couture. The organizers have a two-fold mission: to bring together emerging and established fashion and accessory designers for the bay area to enjoy, and to raise funds for non-profit organizations. This year's beneficiary was Best Buddies, an organization

Eastern Design Meets Western Trends at Fashion Week

In Designers on September 7, 2009 at 3:00 pm

East meets west at Fashion Week Tampa Bay 2009. Designer Sana Hassan will premier her newest one-of-a-kind collection that combines traditional Indian design with the latest western trends. Born in Bangladesh, Bengali, the elaborate patterns of Indian fashion remain close to Sana's heart. Sana studied fashion design and has worked with leading fashion designers in Bangladesh. Sana's goal is to bring color, pattern, design and the feel of the garment to bridge the gap between Indian fashion and modern style and elegance. Her collection will bring originality and distinctive style to the Bay area that is suitable for today's lifestyle. Come get a peek of ancient India and become inspired by the tasteful fusion of Sana Hassan at Fashion Week Tampa Bay!
